Council spearheads plans for water conservation, library expansion

The lead story in the Jan. 31 issue of The News outlined the Urban Water Management Plan that was adopted by the City Council at this Tuesday's meeting. The plan is to be filed with the California Department of Water Resources.

The council passed Resolution No. 91-06 which gets off the ground the grant which the Sierra Madre Library is requesting. The total project amounts to $2,492,674 of which the library and community have raised $398,050.

The Sierra Madre Redevelopment Agency, sitting as the council, has agreed to allocate $350,000 toward the project if the grant application is accepted.

City Librarian Toni Buchner said, "Only $75 million is available; however, over $300 million has been requested (from other libraries around the state). Our project will cost $108 per square foot. Appraised land value (land, fees and furnishings) is $337,234. The state project administration fee is $12,463."

Submittal of the information is tomorrow, Feb. 15. If not accepted, the next time Sierra Madre Library could submit a request is July 15.

Mayor Pro Tem Andrew Roy Buchan made the motion for approval of the city to negotiate individual agreements and to fund previously designed plans concerning the capital improvement project, called the "burned out area," at 12 - 24 W. Sierra Madre Blvd. Sixty thousand dollars for soft costs and $71,000 for the infrastructure were allotted by the council Tuesday evening.

That rounds out at about $180,000 participation with the three owners, Helen Elliott, Fred Crocket and Berge Yeghiaian who plan to build two-story structures on the land between Happy's Wines and Spirits and the Renaissance plaza. This week brought ground-breaking with walls beginning to go up by presstime.

The Sierra Madre Environmental Action Council (SMEAC) have expressed their concerns about brush clearance within Bailey Canyon as needed since devastating destruction by the county workers who, without notification, sprayed herbicides and cut down all native brush in the area. The access road was backfilled with dirty fill which needs to be

Sierra Madreans to cut water use

Sierra Madre should be in an enviable position on water with a plentiful supply, quality water and a high elevation.

Instead, the City Council has asked all Sierra Madreans to cut their water usage by 10 percent and the Raymond Basin Management Board says we have overpumped our alloted water quota by more than 500 acre feet.

We have never needed supplemental water, but the current drought and two years without our additional tunnel water (which is not counted in our water allotment) because the tunnels were being repaired, has brought the problem to the forefront of concern.

If, indeed, we have overpumped our allotment, why can't we just get imported water to replenish our credit and supplement our supply as other cities do?

The reason is that, unlike our neighbors Arcadia and Pasadena, we do not belong to the Metropolitan Water District (MWD) which has a pipeline running under Grandview, but, as of now, is unavailable to us as a nonmember.

Safety belts save, save

Buckle Up California urges families to recognize the annual Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week from Feb. 10 - 16, 1991, according to Teri Smith, executive director of Buckle Up California.

The theme Buckle Up for Love!, is designed to encourage parents and others to protect their children in child safety seats and safety belts by correctly using them. The goal of 1991's awareness week is to urge correct use of these protection devices. "When used correctly," Smith said, "child safety seats are extremely reliable in preventing deaths and injuries to young passengers."

Motor vehicle crashes are the number one killer and crippler of children. Correct use of child safety seats and belts is 71 percent effective in preventing deathand 67 percent effective in preventing serious injuries to children four and under.

Last year in California 43 children under the age of four were killed in traffic collisions. Only five of those 43 were riding in properly secured safety seats. More than half of the other 38 would likely be alive had they been riding in safety seats fastened correctly.

"As parents and guardians, we spend a lot of time and energy nurturing and protecting our children. Why stop short when we get into our cars? We can prevent tragic accidents and untold heartbreak if we take time to protect them while driving," said Smith.

Buckle Up California joins law enforcement agencies and citizens' groups throughout the nation in recognizing Feb. 10-16 as Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week, a time for everyone to get into the habit of correctly using child safety seats and safety belts.

Under the Pepper Tree

by Jan Reed

● Monday went along fine until we found ourselves in the Emergency Unit of Methodist Hospital. While playing Mr. Mom, Don cut himself. And Dr. Mark Agron, head of the Emergency Services at Methodist, was the man to stitch up the thumb.

● Don didn't work Monday, because of the holiday so he was being a good guy, sharpening knives for me, replacing light bulbs, then getting the pot roast in the oven. He was in the process of putting in the vegetables when the knife went the wrong way into the bell pepper.

● He told me that he was perfectly happy to go into battle in the Persian Gulf in the same two-man F-89 fighters that he flew in the Korean War. He's happy to do it but he's not sure if the fighters would be happy. He's put on a few pounds during those years. Oh well. At least he's willing.

● Last Wednesday was a busy day at The News. The paper had arrived from where it is printed in Tujunga and Dana was addressing it out in back.

Tony was in the field, filling all the news racks with the new edition and delivering the new papers to vendors who sell them for us.

Then I called in an S.O.S., explaining that I'd put my truck key into the ignition of the old Dodge inadvertently. That's a redundant word because you don't do those things intentionally. We use the Dodge very little these days because it has two tires in the grave. But in a pinch — Tuesday and Wednesday — it's my only transportation.

There were two people in the front office and the phone was ringing, as usual. Rosette had only one choice — she asked one of the customers to watch the office while she ran across the street to Happy's to get Tony to come to my rescue.

A few minutes later, while the front office continued to overflow with customers, one of our UPS clients waved a package at Rosette, saying, "Don't bother to come to the back for my package. I know how to write it up."

She did. Another hurdle over.

We all got through the day and we'd like to note that this could happen only in Sierra Madre...

People helping people.

People trusting people.

● Alluding again to Rosette, our bookkeeper for all these years, she just returned from a brief holiday in Cancun with her husband, Joe. He had to return once more on business and she decided not to go. He asked her what she would like to have him bring back. "Sand," was her reply.

Sand it was and if you could see that beautiful, sparkly stuff you would know why. She sifted it around the office so we could see it.

● We were in San Francisco for the weekend. We try to go there once a year for a little family reunion, descending on Barbara and Bruce. Camee, Bud and Wesley went along and we all had a marvelous time.

It was my birthday weekend and we celebrated in a wild restaurant called Cadillac. They sang to me in Spanish with a guitar accompaniment, had me blow out a candle, then one of them fed me rice pudding. So far, so good.

Suddenly, one of them set a glass in front of me and prepared to feed me a "popper." What is a popper? The waiter placed a napkin over the top and give it a jarring bang on the table to mix it up. Sounds pretty heavy. Tequila with a touch of soda.

All hands went up at the table and the kids said, "Not for Mom, not for Mom."

They were right.

I looked around and saw three fellows at a nearby table with napkins tied around their heads. Why? Well, because after you've had three poppers, you get to tie the napkin — that's right, around the head. One fellow stood on a table. He'd had four poppers. Oh boy.

Well, it was an interesting birthday. And informative. I loved it.

● Several people have been in recently to ask why more of our Sierra Madreans aren't flying American flags. I said I'd mention it to you all... She reminded me that flying the flag doesn't support the war... just the service people. Pass it along...

About the Casons

In the January 24th "Under the Pepper Tree" in the News there was an item about David Cason's recent visit. This brought back many memories of Sierra Madre in the 40s and 50s. Mary Toms Ward, Helen Hawkins, and Rosa Cason all had wonderful voices, and would frequently be called on to sing sometime during the evening at the frequent parties held by their many friends. Somewhere along the way the trio acquired the sobriquet of "Les Girls" and even made a small recording of songs for some of their local friends. Unfortunately, Mary Toms Ward and Helen Hawkins have passed away, as has Mac Cason, Rosa's husband.

Mention of the Rose Parade float brought back special memories since I won the prize offered for coming up with the name selected for the float, "Good Things Come in Small Packages." I don't remember whether Mac's design or my naming came first, but I clearly remember the float. In those days Sierra Madre had small floats without riders. This one was a cube about six feet on a side, made up like a wrapped Christmas gift with a bow on top. I think we even won a prize for the best entry for a city of less than 20,000 population.

Incidently, Mac was later appointed Chief Architect for the new University of California campus near La Jolla, and the family moved to La Jolla.

David followed his father into the architectual field. His office is in Beverly Hills, but he has a second office in Toronto where he has been spending several months each year. David's twin sister, Georgia, and her family live with Rosa in La Jolla. I know they would like to hear from any of their old friends in Sierra Madre.

Out and About

By Dick Rogers

It's almost time for the jungle plant to be shown again. I'm referring to the Wisteria (Wistaria) vine (tree...bush...organism...house mover...plant). Last year I was volunteered for the tour buses that shuttled the mass of humanity that showed up for the event. I'm being tapped again. That's fine. I had fun.

As a tour guide you're responsible for all kinds of important facts and relevant data. On the way up Mountain Trail, I pointed out the house where, in 1937, a pasture stood, where two cows had markings which, when they stood side-by-side, spelled "WOW." As we approached the top (arter), I enlightened them to the fact that our town is built on an extinct volcano, and the noise they heard above the noise of the engine was simply unexplained phenomena. As we roared by the Richardson House, I pointed out ladies dressed in old clothes and told my charges to avert their eyes because we were passing a licensed brothel. When we returned to Kersting Court I was forced to take a break.

For those of you who are unaware of what happened last year, we had a turnout of thousands...totally unexpected...and everyone was taxed to perform beyond capabilities, and they did it. Although many people had to wait for hours, they managed to see the vine...and they were not vexed. Because everyone who worked the event were decent, caring people, those who were on the receiving end of this effort could only give encouragement and support...and they let us know they appreciated our efforts. I'm told that we will be prepared for the masses this year.

I have also heard that we may possibly include The Waldo Ward enterprise on this year's sojourn. I've already started to work up some hystery (cousin to history). I know, I shouldn't make light of such a nice effort and on something that relects so warmly on our town. In fact, there are few things I've seen in this little hamlet that achieved the success of the last Wisteria Fete. Usually I jest when I like something, so everyone can relax.

So, maybe I'll see you out there...giving with the history of our town, such as it is, and adding an upheaval or two...a character...and tricks by an old mule named Sarah.

By Phyllis Chapman

Are you of the school who thinks one of the great pleasures of life is shopping of antiques and collectibles? Especially when it turns into a real serendipity?

Having an antique show and sale is one of the great pleasures of the Sierra Madre Woman's Club. In fact they make it their main annual fund raiser.

The Club will hold its 16th Annual Sierra Madre Antique Show and Sale on Sat. and Sun. Feb. 23 and 24, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days. Admission is $2.50 or $2 with discount ticket available from local merchants or by bringing the ad for the show with you which will appear in next week's Sierra Madre News.

Dollie Morant, benefit chair, invites the public to take the time to browse throughout the clubhouse for antiques and collectibles provided by 12 participating antique dealers. Featured will be such items as dolls, fine china and glassware, jewelry, household utensils, linens, postcards, etc. Take your time too and enjoy refreshments provided by the club members.

Proceeds from this main fund-raiser are given mostly to local philanthropies. Among the recipients will be Sierra Madre Volunteer Fire Department. EMT's, special programs provided by the Sierra Madre Police Dept., Sierra Madre Beautifacation Committee, Search and Rescue Team, Public Library, Rose Float Association, Pioneer Cemetery, Skilled Nursing Facility, Athletic Association, Convalescent Aid Society, Mt. Sierra Madre Main Street Chamber of Commerce

by Ron Hutson

Acting on a recommendation of the Chamber Funding Task Force, Main Street Chamber board members last week unanimously approved contracting with revitalization and development consultant Edward Henning. Mr. Henning will assist in directing Chamber efforts to win approval for a business improvement district in downtown Sierra Madre.

Chamber Director and task force member Helen Elliott (The Spinning Wheel), told the board, "Several meetings have been held during the past year to discuss methods of funding the downtown revitalization program. We believe the business improvement district (BID) self-assessment procedure is the best and fairest tool available. We need professional assistance to make sure our business and commercial property owners have the opportunity to understand exactly what an improvement district can and cannot do."

Chamber President Judy Webb-Martin pointed out the legal process required to adopt an improvement district guarantees everyone effected will have a voice and a vote. "It's up to us to see that accurate information is made available, that business and property owner questions are answered with facts, not guesses. Even with the assistance of a consultant,our board and supporters of the improvement district will have to spend many volunteer hours meeting with business and property owners before the BID is presented for a vote," President Webb-Martin told the board.

The Chamber board recognizes anything that costs money and is not totally voluntary will raise lots of questions. The current economic conditions and uncertain world situation will add confusion and more concerns to be addressed.

Why hire a consultant? Isn't this what the Main Street Project Manager was hired to do? Frankly, the answer is yes and no. The Project Manager is responsible for making the board and business community aware of methods of funding the revitalization effort which have been successful. It is a staff responsibility to coordinate and assist in planning effective development activities. And when additional professional management help is needed to be successful, getting that assistance is a staff responsibility.

Mr. Henning has been involved with community development and downtown revitalization programs and projects for over 15 years. He has worked with four Southern California cities ranging in population from 20,000 to 250,000. In particular, he worked directly on various aspects of conceptual planning and implementation of Business Improvement Districts in the cities of Whittier, Santa Ana, Los Altos, Burbank, Azusa and Culver City. Mr. Henning's contract services are not to exceed $5000.

Reminder: Tickets for the Chamber's Annual Meeting and Citizen of the Year Recognition on February 21st are available at the Sierra Madre News office, or at the Chamber office.

We had several chances to join MWD, but chose instead, in 1959, to form a four-city water district with Alhambra, Azusa, and Monterey Park, mainly to stay out of MWD which was anathema to many Sierra Madreans. It was felt we would have greater control over our destiny, be able to obtain any water we might need less expensively and have access to higher quality water through our own small district.

Today we still have no way to get supplemental water from our San Gabriel Valley Municipal Water District (SGVMWD), despite paying what many consider to be exhorbitantly high taxes for 31 years.

The problem lies in the fact that the district's Feather River water supply is placed in a different water storage basin (San Gabriel) than ours (Raymond Basin). The San Gabriel Basin lies some 800 feet lower in elevation, which would necessitate a costly pipeline and pumping to get it to us.

The three other cities are located in the lower basin and do not share our problem. Being only one in five (there are five directors on the board of which Sierra Madre has one), and not having a desperate need for supplemental water, finding a solution has never been given priority by the district.

Now the picture is changing.

Members of the City Council finally have become more agressive in their stance and both the Raymond Basin Management Board and the SGVMWD Board have become more receptive to suggestions for possible solutions. In addition, MWD has become more interested in exchanging right and credits in various basins in which they have rights.

We will take a look at these and other possibilities in subsequent articles, as well as hearing from various water experts, our representative to the SGVMWD and members of the City Council regarding progress which they feel is taking place.

Smart Investment Pays Dividends

Window treatments are an investment in time, money and creativity, so protect this investment by purchasing the right type of draperies for your needs and caring for them properly.

First make a sound investment.

★Know what you're buying. Ask about the colorfastness, the suggested care process, its resistance to light and how this relates to the atmospheric conditions of your home.

★Consider purchasing lined draperies which have a longer life than unlined.

★If your draperies are custom-made, ask for preshrunk fabric, especially when installing floor-to-ceiling draperies.

★Read the care label carefully. Look for sun-resistant fabrics such as acrylic, modacrylic, polyester, nylon and glass fibers. Silk and sheer fabrics weaken much faster than heavier, tightly woven fabrics. Protect these fabrics by installing blinds or blockers on the window as well. Some draperies have special backing that insulates and reflects light well, but it may be difficult to clean.

★Clean your draperies at least once a year, and vacuum thoroughly between cleanings.

★If possible, rotate your draperies to vary light exposure. Sun can damage draperies, weakening textile fibers and fading colors.

To See, Or Not To See

ALICE — Mia Farrow, Joe Mantegna See. While there are not the usual sheer quantity of Allenisms as in most of Woody Allen films, there are still enough to serve as an appetizer. while we await his next film. Woody gets a bit too whimsical with the Oriental herb cures for Alice's problems, but Farrow is practically genius in her ability to pass off the absurd as reality. This is definitely her vehicle, and she is an ace driver. As always, the bit players in this "Woody" are superb and a ton of fun.
Pasadena Pacific Hastings.

MERMAIDS — Cher, Winona Ryder, Christina Ricci
Not. This unsuccessfully manipulative, inane story should have been drowned immediately. A dimwitted script and lackadaisical direction give the usually talented Cher and Ryder embarrassingly unfunny roles as irresponsible sleaze Mom and pious Jewish girl who wants to be a nun. The only one who makes a splash is Ricci as Cher's younger daughter. It may be a film to see on dollar-fifty Wednesday just to see a star in the making.

Author to sign copies of book at B.Dalton,Feb. 16

Novelist Ellen Jones, author of "The Fatal Crown," a new novel just published in hard cover by Simon & Schuster, will be signing copies of her book at B. Dalton Bookseller in Santa Anita Fashion Park shopping mall on Saturday, Feb. 16, from 1 - 3 p.m. The mall is located at 400 S. Baldwin Ave. in Arcadia (off the 210 Freeway, Baldwin exit). B. Dalton is upstairs, near J.C.Penney Department Store. For Information call (818) 445-0881.

"The Fatal Crown," a 12th-century historical romance, focuses on the tragic story of an illicit, doomed love affair between two passionate Norman rivals for the British throne: Maud, daughter of Henry I, granddaughter of William the Conqueror, and teenaged bride of the Holy Roman Emperor; and her opponent, Stephen, who is also her cousin. although set in the 12th century, "The Fatal Crown" carries a subtle message for today's career women, many of whom try, like Maud, to balance career and romance, with sometimes disastrous results.

For Book Lovers

Loretta Mansill

There are patty melts and there are tuna melts but while watching Hallmark Hall of Fame's presentation of "Sarah, Plain and Tall," I coined a new phrase: heartmelt. That is the best way I know to describe the tender story that won the Newbery Medal for its author Patricia MacLachlan. It was good timing to play it in the early days of February, the month of hearts and chocolates, some of them, also, melted.

I read the 58 page book just ahead of its TV premiere. I wanted, I guess, to answer the age-old question: "What was better, the book or the movie?" But to a booklover and there is no comparison, for example, between the opening scene that sets the tone for this story of loss and hope in the lives of two mother-less children and their widower-father.

In the book, there is a poignancy, and opportunity to pause and ponder as the dialogue between brother and sister begins: "Did mama sing every day?" asked Caleb. "Every single day?"

There is the reader's uncanny ability to hear their voices as they speak, hear the "background music" created partly by the author and partly by a reader's own imagination. In the TV movie it is on the screen and it's over. It is a good scene, a sad scene, but it whizzes past and then you're onto the next adventure, another character, an expanse of scenery. There is no time and space to savor the sweetness, the ethereal quality of the language. It's the difference between whizzing by in a car or taking a leisurely walk. You trade something for the exhilaration of speed, like maybe smelling the flowers.

I was surprised to hear people who had read the book say that the TV version was "just like the book." Actually, I didn't think so. The book is written from the daughter's point of view, through her sense and sensibility, we enter into her world, seeing the fragility and delicacy of things like hope and fear, chickens and seashells, love.

As I watched the film, with its focus on Sarah and Jacob, I kept saying to my friend, everytime melodrama or sizzle came onto the screen, "this isn't in the book." My friend would reply, "well, that's because it's a childrens' book."

No, childrens' books usually don't sizzle, and yet in them I find a quality of heartmelt that touches an even deeper cord. There is a simplicity that allows lines like, "There's always things to miss, no matter where you are," to come through as a clarion call.

Now, there were, no doubt, others that preferred the film. It may well have seemed more psychologically correct (or relevant) for the daughter to resent the intrusion of Sarah, another woman, a step-mother, into the household (a slant that was not in the book). And it is more passionate if love between the man and woman develops after a war between the sexes has been fought, but I've seen all that in less tender stories than "Sarah, Plain and Tall."

The only really good explanation I heard for preferring the TV version, was from a fifth grader who said simply, "I liked it better; I didn't have to read it."

Needless to say, not a booklover!

SMOKE KILLS!

* Most deaths in home fires occur during the night time hours.
* Usally people are overcome by the smoke, toxic gases or the lack of oxygen — not the fire itself.
* Half of all lives lost in fires could have been saved if the homes had been equipped with an early warning device such as a smoke detector.

Danger In The Air.

Metallic balloons can be hazardous when they come in contact with Edison power lines. Because one balloon can cause the line to short, resulting in power outages that can affect thousands of customers. A downed line can also threaten life and property. So here are some common sense tips, to help make for a safer ballooning experience. Keep metallic balloons indoors, and hold onto them with both hands when outdoors. Don't remove the government required string weight. Don't bundle metallic balloons. Never release them outdoors. If a balloon becomes tangled in a power line, do not attempt to retrieve it. And never use metallic string. Keep these safety precautions in mind. Because the dangers involved with metallic balloons are not just full of a lot of hot air.

'The Nerd' to start Mar. 1, Playhouse

An inventive, side-splitting comedy, "The Nerd," by Larry Shue has its champagne opening, Friday, Mar. 1 at the Sierra Madre Playhouse at 8 p.m. Performances Fridays and Saturdays at 8 are scheduled through Apr. 6 with matinees at 2:30 p.m. Sundays, Mar. 10 and 17.

The play's action centers on the hilarious dilemma of a young architect visited by a man he's never met but who saved his life in Vietnam. The visitor turns out to be an incredibly inept, hopelessly stupid "nerd" who outstays his welcome with a vengeance. Critics say it's a spring tonic of side-brusing laughter bringing tears of merriment.

The production is directed by Frank Patano with a cast featuring Marysue Cadman, Jeffrey Asch, Kevin Blackton, Anthony Alan Anthony, Joshua Cadman, Denice Stradling, and Shelley Anne Morzov.

Admission prices are adults $7.50, seniors and students $6.50, children 12 and under $4. Reservations are required. Call (818)355-4318. The Playhouse is located at 87 W. Sierra Madre Blvd., Sierra Madre.

Kent Twitchell's award-winning mural, Marathon Runners.

Kent Twitchell, muralist, show sponsored by CAG

Kent Twitchell, the internationally recognized Los Angeles muralist and master of "extreme realism," will present an evening of slides and discussion at Creative Arts Group, 108 N. Baldwin Ave., Sierra Madre. He will then join participants at Lizardi/Harp Gallery in Pasadena to view his one-man show which features one of his newest and most well-known murals, "Marathon Runners."

This very special event, sponsored by the Creative Arts Group Alliance, is scheduled for Feb. 22. A reception for the artist willbe held from 6:30 to 7 p.m., and the program will begin at 7. Reservations and donations (a nominal $5 per person) should be received no later than Feb. 20. Reservations can be made by calling Creative Arts Group at (818)355-8350.

Twitchell's appearance at Creative Arts Group is one of several events being held in conjunction with the opening of the organization's renovated and greatly expanded facility, which includes new classrooms, two new kilns, an enlarged gallery and gift shop, and on-site parking.

Creative Arts Group was established in 1960 to supplement the public schools' arts programs and has since grown to serve not only children but adults as well, with a broad spectrum of art-related classes and activities.

Council spearheads plans

With a $50,000 grant in hand, obtained by the Recreation Department, the area will be cleaned up with the help of volunteers and Griffin and Sons, the contractor who has been hired.

Councilman Clem Bartolai complimented SMEAC for its discovery and assistance in returning the area to its previous pristine condition.

The City Council adopted Resolution No. 91-07 which adopted the Sierra Madre Park Facilities Rules and Regulations and fee schedules.

The Sierra Madre Commission on Aging, Inc. has urged the City Council to adopt a voluntary program of referral services, according to Robert Hanson, a representative, who said, "We have no plan whatsoever to close the Senior Citizen Center. We will continue to provide the referral service but it will be done by volunteers. The Sierra Madre Commission on Aging, Inc. has endorsed the concept by a unanimous vote."

Mary Jane Pakulshi, who has served as a paid employee in that role, took umbrage to the plan and said,"I trust that before you make this decision you will submit to a survey of seniors in the community. Give them an opportunity to strike out and plan their own service program."

According to her husband, Linus, she works four hours a day for five days a week. For that she gets "a lousy $4000 a year...She provides more than information and referral and tax assistance."

The council went along with the commission's suggestion and passed the resolution.

Laurie Cooper described the Waste Management Task Force proposals and said that the best recommendation was for green waste collection. That, she said, could be changed to compost and could be used as a ground cover instead of soil.

She noted that there were many disagreements within the task force and said that Chairman John Govorchin felt that there was an inequity of fees concerning barrels and bins.

Cooper said that everyone in town including the business section should participate.

After the report was " received and filed," Councilman Clem Bartolai asked, "What does this report drive?"

City Administrator Jim Mc Rea said, "The city must adopt a plan to divert 25 percent of their municipal solid waste in 1995 and 50 percent in 2000."

The News will outline the entire plan in the Feb. 21 edition.

The Hillside Ordinance was back on the agenda Tuesday and Bartolai made the motion to authorize the city administrator to forward the ordinance to Burke, Williams and Sorensen for legal analysis so they could "refine and edit." Another motion by MaryAnn MacGillivray authorized administration to complete the Environmental Impact Report so it would not exceed $20,000.

The city is preparing a city hall wall board which will name Sierra Madreans now serving in the Persian Gulf or Middle East. So far, those names include Kirk Evans, David Brandley, Patrick Nolan, Robert Kayman, Larry Gonzales, Devon Jones and Jeffrey Schwartz. Former resident Carl Giles is also among those serving.

Unsafe passing was the cause of an auto versus auto injury traffic collision at Orange Grove and Baldwin.

In the Jan. 24 edition of The News an attempted robbery was reported. According to the victims who were walking on Auburn at about 9 p.m. on Jan. 18, no weapons were used. Three suspects approached the couple and after one of the victims yelled, the suspects were scared off and ran to a waiting car, a dark Camero. The suspects sped off up the street. The victims want to caution late evening walkers to be a bit more wary.

St. Rita's

Lenten schedule of Masses

During Lent, daily Mass will be at 6:30 and 8 a.m, Monday through Friday, and at 8 a.m. on Saturday. The Sunday schedule will remain the same. There is also a 6:30 a.m. Mass at the old Monastery chapel every day of the week.

Lenten soup kitchen

Everyone is invited to join the various Parish organizations in the Soup Kitchen event during the Lenten season. The Soup Kitchen meal which will be served each Friday of Lent at 6 p.m. in the PAC Hall, consists of soup with crackers or bread and butter and a beverage. It is suggested that the money saved in eating this frugal, but delicious, meal be given to the poor. This week the Soup Kitchen will be presented by St. Rita's Youth Group.

A Lenten tree

Starting on the first Sunday in Lent there will be a Lenten Tree in the vestibule of the Church. It will work much the same way as the Christmas Tree where parishioners will take a flower from the tree and fulfill the simple instructions printed there. You will be asked for a spiritual gift and for a material gift to go to our sister parish of St. Anthony's whose needs for its ministry to the poor and the homeless grow more desperate day by day.

Pray for peace

(From an editorial in the Tidings Newspaper by Archbishop Mahoney)

"I invite both our Catholic Community and all people of good will to join with me in continuous prayer that this present conflict will soon be brought to an end, and that appropriate steps will be taken to reverse the tragedies which (man) has now created. Make us, Lord Jesus Christ, your peace makers in this time of war; may our prayers bring about a restoration of tranquillity and peace throughout the world."

Bethany

By Al Elby

Pastor has been talking to us about the niches and ditches of life. We all strive for a niche in life, a haven where we feel comfortable and secure. Unfortunately, life has all too few niches and altogether to many ditches for us to stumble into. Some of these ditches in the road are put there by others. On the other hand many of the ditches that are found in the road of life we dug ouselves and became victims of our own handiwork. Pastor was admonishing us to take charge of our lives, get in the drivers seat and pilot our lives around these pitfalls. We must take responsibility for our lives by carving out a niche instead of digging that proverbial ditch.

Pastor said the ditches life, by and large, were areas of irresponsibility on our part. Basically there are 6 areas of irresponsibility: 1) mismanagement of our time. For most of us this is probably the one we are guilty of most often. 2) being undependable by shying away from getting the job done so as a result we find many unmet needs. 3) we don't go out of our way in our work or in our relationships. This is a sure path to defeat and unhappiness. 4) won't take on any responsibility. This is not only frustrating but unproductive. 5) won't face things. With your head in the sand you'll hit the ditch every time. You've got to see where you're going in life. 6) lastly, you not only won't begin things but you won't finish them.

As I persue this list I can see a number of ditches that I have spent time in. I do believe that if we are honest with ourselves we can all identify with a number of these ditches. Now the problem is not only howdo we get out of the ditch but how do we avoid falling into it again. This is a great place to stop because it gives me a launching pad for another article on "solutions."

Methodist

By Rev. Rich La Shure

The initials U.M.W. Do not stand for United Mine Workers in our church. They stand for United Methodist Women!

Formerly the Women's Society of Christian Service (W.S.C.S.), the United Methodist Women Organization has served as the mission arm of the United Methodist Church for more than 50 years. In many local churches it is literally the case that "the widow's mite" helps make possible a vast outreach of helping ministries in over 130 nations around the world. Services rendered by these missional projects include basic health and dental care, needed medicine, fresh water and food staples as well as education and training of every sort.

Presently the United Methodist Women of Sierra Madre are engaged in a study of the Islamic faith and its history. Eleanor Ward is the president of the organization.

This Sunday the entire worship service will be prepared and presented by members of the United Methodist Women's local unit. This is an annual celebration of the leadership role of women in our church.

Come to chuch this Sunday and find a friend!

About the gun report...

This letter was sent to Dick Rogers, columnist of "Out and About," with a copy to The News. Ed.

I have known you for a number of years and appreciated your wit and writing talent. It was no surprise that upon your retirement you continued to practice your avocation and pen the column, "Out and About." I do have to take exception to your article of Jan 17, 1991, regarding your feelings about hunting. While I can appreciate your opinion I feel that you are very misinformed, or have taken a stance with only limited information.

Like you, I have devoted better than a quarter century to the enforcement of our laws and keeping our citizens safe. Unlike you I hate golf. I believe that golf is a good way to screw up a walk and is generally practiced by individuals who are more interested in themselves than those around them. I hold this opinion, but do not voice it, as I believe that people have a right to their "stress reducers" as long as they are legal and do not cause harm to society or my family.

Now that I have gotten your attention I would like to contribute to your knowledge and inform you regarding my sport, hunting, which you believe is without redeeming social value.

I and other true hunters, contribute significantly to the preservation of wildlife. We have "Ducks unlimited," "Quail Unlimited" and numerous organizations that are interested in the preservation of wildlife. We contribute not only dollars, but time and energy to the restoration of habitat and improving the environment for a variety of game wildlife. We regard all outdoor creatures with respect and awe. We are NOT "wild eyed gun nuts" who refuse to obey the law and have no respect for the gifts that the good Lord has given us.

I have hunted deer, waterfowl and upland game. I have also fished the inland waterways and the oceans. I appreciate the flight of geese you spoke of. I respect the birds I shoot and the fish I catch. I only hunt and fish for the game I will eat, otherwise I will not take it.

You really were misinformed when you stated, —" In honor of the dead bird, a ritual more than anything else, he cooks the pellet-ridden carcass and with a straight face will tell you that it is delicious. To the hungry it is delicious and probably essential...I'll buy that." I can only assume that you have not eaten properly prepared wild game, or you have tried eating your golf balls and have the two confused. I returned from a trip in early December with one wild turkey, several pheasants, chukar and quail. We ate the turkey the week of your column, as I was working the holidays, (you remember doing that). Yes, some number 4 shot was in the turkey, but it tasted better than the store bought ones and was enjoyed by the whole family.

I suggest that you refrain from making rash assumptions. The commercial of several years ago, "different strokes for different folks" when referring to two brands of motorcycles, applies here. You prefer golf and don't know a tinkers damn about hunting. I suggest you stick to golf and writing about subjects you have some knowledge about.

Oh, the next time you're out and about, stop by the house and I'll show you my Browning, my new bird dog, (she's 10 weeks old) and if you are really nice, I'll cook up some pheasants or quail for you.

Thanks for flag etiquette

I am so glad to read in the Sierra Madre News that you are beginning a series on flag etiquette since everyone is flying flags these days. That's great!!! But let's fly them correctly.

In Jan. 17 issue of Sierra Madre News there appeared a picture of a huge flag displayed on the side of a house on Mt. Trail. Unless the picture was printed backwards the American flag is displayed incorrectly.

The correct way to display our flag when hanging on a wall is to have the Canton or field of stars in the upper left hand corner.

I noticed this error immediately but I was leaving soon after that issue appeared in my mail box to go up north to Santa Rosa and did not have time to write before I left.

I would also like to know if the rule of taking a flag down at sundown unless spot lighted is still in force during war time or may we leave them up in the dark?

Hope to see a lot more flags out around town in support of our troops.

On Stage

By Mary Cogswell Baum

It's hard to imagine a production wittier, more colorful, more delightfully dated or more fun than the San Gabriel Valley Civic Light Opera's "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying." The date is 1961 when hair-dos were bouffant and "female consciousness" was just getting started. A secretary's greatest ambition was to marry the boss and settle down to keeping his dinner warm in New Rochelle.

J. Pierpont Finch, an ambitious window-washer, is determined to rise to success with the aid of a book containing clear-eyed realism as to how it should be done. The book ignores business expertise in favor of solid advice on the politics of the advertising industry and Ponty begins his experience in the mail room. His rise is rapid. The book proves to be not dated at all.

"How to Succeed-" had a long, long run on Broadway and won a Pulitzer prize for its exaggerated truth about American business. Add music by Frank Loesser and words by Abe Burroughs and you have a grand show to begin with, but the SGVCLO production is a genuine knock-out.

The cast is perfect. Kenny Rhodes makes Finch as lovably cuddly as he is shy. Sarah Tattersall as lovely Rosemary, determined to chase him until he catches her, sings beautifully and looks utterly charming. Jack Rischel is excellent as the blow-hard company president, and Roger Castellano is the pettish Bud Frump, the boss's nephew you love to hate. Dori Aipoalani is making a career of gorgeous dizzy blonds and has the act down pat, and Danette Holland is a most uninhibited comic. Everybody else is equally good and they all seem to be enjoying themselves immensely.

The sets look like New Yorker cartoons and the costumes dazzle the eye. Director Bill Shaw and Musical Director Roger Lockie have been giving the local professional productions so much competition that Actors Equity is beginning to eye their semi-amateur status. As usual Rikki Lugo's precise and witty choreography fills the stage with humor and atmosphere.

Shaw, Lockie, Lugo and company have become very good indeed and this is one of their best. Go see it. It plays through Feb. 24 at the San Gabriel Civic Auditorium. Call 281-9444 for information.

The First National Company of "Les Miserables," which is now playing at the opulent Pantages Theater in Hollywood, is either better than the company that played at the Schubert for 62 weeks, or seeing it a second times makes one less bewildered by the imaginative sets and the speed with which events move on stage, and more able to concentrate on the words and the characters. Whichever, it seems even more enjoyable this time.

Familiarity with the book doesn't hurt, of course, and an amazing amount of that long novel is at least sketched in the musical. The saintly Jean Valjean (Gary Morris, with a voice of remarkable range), the tunnel-visioned policeman, Javert (Richard Kinsey), the repulsively comic Inn Keeper (Drew Eshelman), the young lovers, Cosette and Marius (Kimberly Behlmann and the night I saw it, Christopher Carothers), not to mention the appealing and doomed young revolutionaries, seem real and compelling, and somehow the music and some quite elaborate staging seem part of the story, rather than the look-at-me-being-spectacular effects of "Phantom." If one had to make a choice, I'd take "Les Miz" any day.

This run is a short one, ending March 10.

Yellow ribbons say 'We care' to forces

Yellow ribbons tied to parkway trees is our way of telling the men and women of the armed forces that "we care" and "we remember you," according to Carol Mandossian, Crestview Drive resident in Upper Hastings Ranch.

Carol told The News that her daughter, Taleen, felt it nice to remember the armed forces and the yellow ribbon tied to parkway trees seemed to do that.

Mandossian is a second grade teacher at Field School in East Pasadena. She said that her second graders listen to TV every morning and participate in 20-minute discussions as part of her social studies class.

Yellow ribbons are tied to many parkway trees in Upper Hastings. Mandossian said that yellow ribbons are now hard to find as many residents are displaying the ribbons as a tribute to the men and women of the armed forces in the Persian Gulf.

WE CARE — Telling the men and women of the armed forces in the Persian Gulf that "we care" are (left to right) Taleen Mandossian, Carol Mandossian and Alex Mandossian, Crestview Drive residents in Upper Hastings Ranch. Alex is holding his dog, Nigel, which he now calls "scud" because he destroys everything in the yard.

10 Tips for Safe Climbing

When climbing courses began in the 1930s, a group of experienced climbers determined that all hikers should be equipped with what came to be called the "10 essentials" of climbing:

1. Map of area (protected)
2. Compass
3. Flashlight with extra cells and bulbs
4. Extra food
5. Extra clothes
6. Sunglasses
7. First Aid Kit
8. Pocket knife
9. Matches in waterproof container
10. Fire starter.

Signal mirror and whistle are useful items to carry along also.

SCAG describes demographics

The Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG) recently released a new publication titled, "Economic Profile of the SCAG Region." The 205-page statistical abstract contains dozens of easy-to-read tables and graphs. It is ideal for private and public policymakers requiring a convenient demographic and reference source and as a guide to other statistical reports and sources of economic information on southern California.

The publication is the first ever published by SCAG to assemble consistent historical statistics in time series form, both by county and for the SCAG region as a whole. The report's statistical information is benchmarked to 1987 data but includes 1988, 1989 and 1990 statistics whenever possible.

Copies of the "Economic Profile" are available through SCAG's Publication and Data Center at $15 per copy. For information concerning this publication call SCAG's Data Purchase Center (213) 236-1893. Ventura County Supervisor John Flynn is SCAG's Interim President and Mark Pisano is the Executive Director.

At the PCC Flea Market Sunday, Mar. 3, 8 a.m. - 3 p.m., 400 sellers will be featured. Among items offered are collectibles, arts and crafts, household items, new and used clothing, jewelry, furniture, books, hardware, plants, sporting goods, decorative accessories, tools, record swap.

Volunteers needed for UCLA referral service

The California Self-Help Center, located on the campus of UCLA, is looking for volunteers to answer calls to its statewide toll-free, computerized referral service. The service provides referrals to self-help groups throughout California which address a wide variety of concerns: bereavement, chronic illness, groups which respond to crises (i.e., Desert Storm, earthquakes, etc.), parenting, divorce, emotional problems, addictions, etc.

Volunteers are especially needed at this time. The impact of war in the Gulf has doubled the demand for self-help group referrals.

There is also a need for administrative volunteers to assist with work related to group data collection and maintenance. A commitment of three hours per week is required. Training and free parking at UCLA will be provided. Our next orientation session is scheduled for the last week of February. For more information call Tinal Weaver at (213) 825-7990 or (213) 825-1799.

Lorquin Fair Mar. 23-24 at L.A. Arboretum

The fifth annual Lorquin Insect Fair will be held at the Los Angeles County Arboretum in Arcadia Saturday and Sunday, Mar. 23 and 24, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. This event, featuring exhibits on both live and preserved insects, is sponsored in part by the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County, which is featuring its own tribute to insects, the Ralph M. Parsons Insect Zoo.

The Los Angeles County Arboretum is located at 301 N. Baldwin Avenue in Arcadia. The Insect Fair is free with Arboretum admission, which is $3 for adults, $1.50 for students and senior citizens with I.D., and 75 cents for children 5-12. For more information please contact Dr. Arthur V. Evans, Insect Zoo Director, at the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County at (213) 744-3558.

CRUISE PREVIEW — Members of the Arcadia High School Executive Council tour the California Hornblower to make plans for the Valentine's Dance to be held aboard the three-deck ship this weekend.

AHS students schedule cruise to celebrate Valentine's Day

Arcadia High School students will celebrate Valentine's Day with a cruise around Long Beach harbor aboard the California Hornblower on Saturday, Feb. 16.

One of the evening's features will be the crowning of the Valentine King. Under the direction of the Inter-Club Council, various clubs on campus nominated and subsequently campaigned for their choices, according to Josh Uranga, ICC president. Nominees are Guy Cammilleri, Stuart Chang, Ryan Espenschied, Jason Lucas and Mark Travisano.

Other activities during the three and a half hour cruise include dancing to music from a disc jockey, singalong taping and casino games.

This is the second consecutive year that the AHS Executive Council has planned a cruise for its Valentine's Dance; however, this year's boat is considerably larger than the one used last year, reports Kim McNeil, student body president. It seems that after a successful event last year, the students signed a contract for a repeat performance for this year. When that boat The Pride of Los Angeles, was moved to New York, boat owners were obligated to provide another vessel that just happened to be about twice as big as the one used last year. Students are expected to board the California Hornblower at 8 p.m. Cost is $60 per couple.

Nurse's story of Africa, Mercy ship for hospital auxiliary meet

Betty Jackson, R.N., will speak on "Mission Impossible," an account of her experiences as a nurse in Africa and on the Mercy ship, at the Tuesday, Feb. 19 meeting of the Auxiliary of the Methodist Hospital.

Jackson recieved an A.A./R.N. degree at Pasadena City College, a B.S. from the University of Redlands and an M.A. at the University of La Verne.

Semi-retired, she curntly is a professor of nursing at Pasadena City College, where she has been employed for 19 years.

Jackson served at Maua Methodist Hospital in Kenya in 1988 and was aboard the Mercy ship for six weeks in 1989.

The 10 a.m. meeting will be preceded by a membership breakfast in Lewis Hall at 9:15 a.m. Cost of the breakfast is $2 per person and may be paid at the door. The public is invited to hear the speaker at 10:15 a.m. in the hospital auditorium.

Chamber mixer moves to Chino Valley Bank

Phil Thames, manager of Chino Valley Bank in Arcadia, and his staff invite the local business community to the Arcadia Chamber of Commerce Mixer on Thursday, Feb. 21 from 5-7:30 p.m.

Located at 125 N. First Avenue, the branch is one of 15 Chino Valley Bank locations in the greater San Gabriel Valley and Inland Empire. Built originally as Huntington Bank, the facility became associated with the Chino Valley group in 1987 and recently has gone through extensive remodeling.

The bank focuses on serving small to medium-sized businesses in the community, explains Thames, adding, "Our goal is to provide service that exceeds the customers' expectations."

Reservations at $5 per person, which includes food and beverages as well as an opportunity to win raffle prizes donated by chamber members, may be made by calling the chamber office at 447-2159.

Gibson, Lamb file for school board

Maryann Gibson, who currently serves as Arcadia Council PTA president, and Michael Lamb, an Arcadia mortician, have filed declaration of candidacy for the Arcadia Board of Education.

Three of the five seats on the board are to be filled as the terms of Michael Allison, James Bryant and Robert Kladifko will expire on June 30. Allison and Kladifko have said they will not seek reelection.

Filing closes on Friday, Feb. 15 at 4:30 p.m. for the Tuesday, Apr. 16 election. However, if an incumbent does not file, the period is extended to Feb. 20 at 4:30 p.m.

If only three candidates file, the board could save the cost of conducting an election, which was $37,880 in 1989 when two seats were open. If there are only two candidates, the board will make an appointment for the third seat.

Declaration of candidacy forms are available in the superintendent's office in the school district administration center.

In addition to filing the form, candidates may submit a statement of qualifications for inclusion with the sample ballot which is sent to voters. Candidates will be assessed in advance for the costs of printing, handling, translating and mailing the qualifications statement up to a maximum of $500 each. Costs in excess of $500 will be paid by the school district.

PTA COUNCIL HONOREES — Suzanne Keavney and Arlene Okamoto congratulate one another on being selected by Arcadia Council PTA as this year's recipients of Continuing Service Awards.

Keavney, Okamoto receive Continuing Service Awards from Arcadia Council PTA

With musical selections from the 1950s giving clues, Suzanne Keavney and Arlene Okamoto were announced as recipients of Arcadia Council PTA's Continuing Service Awards during a PTA Founders' Day luncheon at the Velvet Turtle last week.

Keavney, who is director of community/student services for the Arcadia Unified School District, was born in Monrovia and graduated from Monrovia-Arcadia-Duarte High School. She went on to UC Santa Barbara where she was a song girl and voted "best personality" during her senior year.

She flew for TWA before settling into a career in education, which took her from being a teacher and Headstart coordinator in Azusa to Arcadia where she has been principal at both Highland Oaks Elementary and Foothills Junior High. A district administrator since 1985, she completed a Master's of Education from Cal State Fullerton and a Doctorate in School Administration from USC.

Her family includes husband Owen; two sons and two daughters as well as their respective spouses and one 4-month grandchild.

In presenting Keavney with the award, Carol Curtis, who was chairman of the HSA committee, said, "Suzanne is a very warm, sincere lady with a genuine concern for students."

Okamoto was born in Arizona in a relocation camp for Americans of Japanese decent. Raised in Southern California, she graduated from Banning High School and went to Long Beach State.

She has been active in PTA volunteer work at Hugo Reid Elementary, Foothills Junior High, Arcadia High and Arcadia Council. Additionally, she is active in Assistance League of Arcadia, is a Green Circle presenter and a contributor to cross cultural events. Okamoto also has been on the Arcadia Red Cross Board for the last six years.

When asked how she spreads herself so thin, she answers, "It doesn't seem difficult when you enjoy and believe in what you are doing."

She and her husband, Robbin, have two boys: Brian is a senior at Arcadia High and Scott is a junior at the University of California, San Diego.

Members of the HSA committee included Maryann Gibson, Cindy Jones, Sharon Novell and Terry Towner. John Hart, principal at Longley Way Elementary, served as the disc jockey of WHSA, which turned out to stand for We Honor Suzanne and Arlene.

Serving on the luncheon committee were Glad Baquet, Sue Besocke, Marilyn Daleo, Joan Leathery, Sherilee Pocino and Robin Stafford.

READY FOR RACE DAY— Jean Cope, Carole Ciraulo and Mary Hansen check out jockey attire during a recent trip to Santa Anita Park where they made final plans for an upcoming Day at the Races sponsored by the Arcadia Republican Women's Club.

ARWC slates Feb. 28 for race-day

Cash prizes, gift items and a restaurant certificate will be won by lucky participants in a Day at the Races benefit at Santa Anita Park sponsored by Arcadia Republican Women's Club, Federated on Thursday, Feb. 28, announces event chairman, Carole Ciraulo.

Between each race a $5 prize will be awarded while between the fourth and fifth races, a crystal decanter, valued at $50, will be given to the winning ticket holder. Other between-races prizes are an art deco necklace, valued at $75, and a $100 gift certificate to either the Derby or Derby East restaurant.

Funds raised at ARWC's annual race-day event will be used for Republican Party education projects, reports Jean Cope, president of the local party support group.

Tickets at $10 per person include admission to Santa Anita's Clubhouse Terrace.

ARA assists in relocation for redevelopment

In order to help Robert Willson relocate his Scientific Glass business to a site in Monrovia, the Arcadia Redevelopment Agency approved $70,610 for tenant improvements at last week's meeting.

Willson's business currently is located in the Northwest Corner Project at Huntington and Second Avenue. The relocation money is in addition to the money which the ARA will give Willson for his property at 117 N. Second Avenue.

Agency member Robert Harbicht pointed out that the Redevelopment Agency spends significant amounts of money to help with relocation in its attempt to treat people fairly.

Tenants on four parcels in the redevelopment project, which are involved with eminent domain proceedings, were given three-month extensions until Feb. 28 before they have to vacate their properties, according th Peter Kinnahan, assistant city manager for economic development.

Even though there is not a developer committed to the Northwest Corner Project, it becomes more marketable when it is clean and clear, Kinnahan points out, adding that new Air Quality Management District restrictions make a demolition project take up to six months because of possible asbestos contamination.

Council approves application for library funds on split vote

With Councilman Charles Gilb and Mayor Mary Young voting against the majority, the Arcadia City Council approved the recommendation of the Library Board of Trustees to submit an application for matching funds provided by the State of California for library construction.

The architectural firm of Charles Walton Associates, AIA, has studied current and projected library needs in the City of Arcadia and has recommend replacing the existing 36,000-square foot structure with a new building of 59,000 square feet to be located directly in front of the existing library.

The total cost of this project could exceed $16,000, and if approved for state funds, 65 percent of eligible costs would be paid by the state with the remaining 35 percent to be provided by the city.

In voting against the proposal, Gilb said that he could not approve such an expenditure indicating the strained economic conditions.

Walton Associates did not recommend remodeling or expanding the existing 30-year old library because that would not qualify for Library Construction Bond Act funds and because it could be very costly as well as inconvenient to relocate to a temporary site during the period of construction. The architect's report also points out that it would be costly to meet the needs of the handicapped, energy conservation, fire sprinkler systems and new seismic standards in the current facility.

City Librarian Kent Ross pointed out that application for library funds does not obligate the city to build.

Chinese New Year celebrated at hospital

In recognition of the New Year celebration that marks the year 4689, the year of the Sheep, Methodist Hospital, Arcadia, is hosting a cross-cultural celebration for staff physicians and the hospital's Chinese associates on Friday, Feb. 15. A Chinese buffet luncheon along with some fascinating cultural entertainment and traditional storytelling will highlight the festivities.

The Chinese lunar calendar is the longest chronological record in history. It dates from 2637 B.C. when the Emperor Huang Ti first introduced the cycles of the zodiac during his 61-year reign. Made up of five simple cycles of 12 years each, a complete zodiacal cycle takes 60 years. The Chinese new year that's marked on Gregorian calendar as February 15, 1991, is, according to Chinese chronology, the year 4689 and is recognized as the year of the Sheep.

According to legend, the Lord Buddha summoned all animals to come to him before he departed from Earth. Only 12 animals arrived to bid him farewell and as a reward he named a year after each one in the order they arrived. First came the Rat, then the Ox, the Tiger, Rabbit, Dragon, Snake, Horse, Sheep, Monkey, Rooster, Dog and last, but not least, the Boar. The animal that rules the year of your birth confers a profound influence on your life. As the Chinese say, "This is the animal that hides in your heart."

WORLD CHAMPIONS — Torry Mirnda and John Robles congratulate each other on winning their second consecutive Handball World Championship.

Sierra Madrean wins world handball title

Torry Miranda of Sierra Madre and his partner, John Robles of Spokane, Washington, successfully defended their title in the four-wall Handball World Championships held last week in Phoenix, Arizona.

The pair won their first championship in Australia in 1988 and entered the recent contest, the first in the last three years, seeded # 1. After losing their first match, Miranda sustained a rib injury and feared early defeat before pulling out a tie breaker.

In the championship match, Miranda and Robles, who hadn't practiced together since the latter moved to Washington in April, "really turned it on," according to the Sierra Madrean, and dominated the match.

Miranda, who has played handball for nine years, began competing about six years ago. He met Robles in 1986 and they played together for a year without winning even a match. In the 1987 U.S. Nationals they lost the second round to the top seed and eventual champion, a match that gave them encouragement to continue competition. Later in 1987, they came in second place in the California State Championsion in Fresno.

The 30-year old Sierra Madre athlete trains by riding a bicycle 10 miles to work in Irwindale and by practicing at an athletic club in El Monte. After riding the nine miles from work to the club for a couple of games, he rides the seven miles up hill to his Sierra Madre home.

The next World Championship is scheduled to take place in Ireland in two to three years. Miranda says that he's not sure if anyone else has held back-to-back championships but a third title is a real challenge.

Miranda, who is a toolmaker in the vehicle safety division of TRW Technar, likes surfing and cycling, and he played in the Sierra Madre volleyball league for some three years.

La Salle loses two

By Gus Delgado

The La Salle soccer team lost hopes of becoming San Fernando League champions as they were defeated by Harvard and St. Francis. La Salle had beaten Harvard earlier in the season in the Damien Tournament but then lost to them in the past two league matchups.

The second meeting against Harvard was the one which would decide the fate of the Lancers in contention for the league title. La Salle, having never been shutout by any of its league opponents, was held scoreless in a 2-0 loss.

The game against St. Francis was played without two starting seniors, one of them being all-league goalie Andre Vener. The loss of these two players proved to be pivotal as the Lancers went on to a 4-1 defeat.

La Salle ended its season with a 5-2 breezy routing of Bell-Jeff. The Lancers start CIF playoffs on Friday.

Pasadena controlled the ball at 64-64 in overtime, missing the shot and giving Arcadia the ball with six seconds on the clock. That was enough time for Mike Parisi, who scored a 3-pointer at the buzzer. Parisi scored 32 points in the game, making seven 3-point shots. Matt Campbell added 17 points and got eight rebounds while Jesse Gant scored 10 and had nine assists in the win.

In the league finale on Friday, Arcadia defeated Crescenta Valley 67-59 as Parisi scored 31; Campbell, 13; and Jeff Provenzano, 11.

Lady Apaches league win streak snapped; Kennedy gets hat trick

After suffering the first Foothill League loss of the past two seasons last week Tuesday, the Arcadia High School girls' soccer team went on to capture the league championship with a 9-0 shutout over San Gabriel on Thursday.
